1. About the University

Civitas University is a Warsaw-based academic institution rooted in the tradition of the Polish Academy of Sciences. Founded in 1997 on the initiative of researchers from the Institute of Political Studies PAS, it has consistently combined academic rigour with practical education.

Its faculty consists of researchers who simultaneously hold public functions, conduct research at national and international institutions, and actively participate in public debate. The university specialises in areas central to contemporary social challenges: information security and disinformation, international relations, sociology, and public policy.

In April 2025, the institution was granted university status. It is located in the Palace of Culture and Science in Warsaw.
