Hushoffice Introduces New Colour Finishes for Its Acoustic Pods

Hushoffice, a global manufacturer of acoustic pods headquartered in Poland, announces the expansion of its portfolio with a new collection of colour finishes for pod exteriors and interior fabrics. The new colour palette is available across both the Hushfree range and the earlier Hushclassic line. Inspired by nature, the collection forms a cohesive design system that helps organisations create workplace environments designed around the people who use them, supporting comfort, focus, collaboration and the diverse needs of modern work.

Decide what happens inside

Acoustic pods are a source of relief for many employees – they allow people to focus on tasks in silence, even when there is a buzz of activity in the open office outside. Pods ensure privacy, ensuring that conversations inside remain private to those outside. Acoustic comfort is extremely important for employees' well-being and productivity. It should not be considered in isolation from the impact of visual stimuli.

That's why Hushoffice is introducing a new colour palette, featuring new exterior finishes and internal panel fabrics – designed not as a set of individual choices, but as a cohesive system that helps shape how the office feels, functions and supports the people within it.

"Based on colour psychology, colour itself can be a powerful tool, shaping emotional states and cognitive processes. It can influence how we perceive and respond to space, and how we perform. Therefore, the choice of colour in the workplace is crucial – and this is grounded in science. Each colour has measurable wavelengths that generate electrical signals, affecting body and mind, and influencing neural pathways, biochemical reactions, cognition, and emotions," says Bogusława Sasin, Product Manager at Hushoffice.

Designed to belong

More than simply a colour palette, Hushoffice finishes form a structured, human-centred system designed to help shape environments that feel natural, intuitive and aligned with the needs of the people who use them. From compact one-person pods to fully accessible team spaces, complemented by a nature-inspired system of colours and finishes, Hushoffice solutions help organisations create more cohesive and intentional workplace environments.

The foundation of the new colour implementations lies in a range of new exterior colour finish options. These correspond to key workplace activities, emotions, and needs, such as energy, focus, creativity, collaboration, and overall wellbeing. While each colour is associated with a distinct set of meanings and emotions, users are free to combine and apply them according to the specific needs of their workforce and organisational context. In this way, they can create a unique employee experience supported by brand-new, harmonious interior panel finishes. The new enclosure finishes are available in the following colours:

- Clay Red is associated with energy, movement, courage, and action, reflecting the connection to red clay and the raw strength of the earth;
- Stream Blue promotes concentration, clarity of thought, and a sense of calm, while encouraging a dynamic flow of ideas, much like a running stream;
- Slate Green has been inspired by nature, growth, and the exploration of new paths, much like a mountain hike;
- Light Oak: wood-inspired associations evoke warmth and humanity, fostering relationships and a sense of community;
- Taupe represents harmonious neutrality, rest, and relaxation; in short, it embodies balance between different activities.

The Hushfree range introduces five new exterior colours, complemented by two additional tabletop finish options, five new Tonal fabric finishes, and a new carpet option.

The Hushclassic line is expanded with five exterior colour options, twelve Camira RePlay fabric finishes, three tabletop finishes, five edge colour options, as well as a new carpet finish.

Hushoffice will also showcase its acoustic pods in the new colour finishes at Orgatec, taking place in Cologne, Germany, from 27–30 October 2026. Visitors to the brand's stand (Hall 6, Stand C058) will have the opportunity to explore the new colour palette across products from both the Hushfree and Hushclassic ranges.
